INTRODUCTION

This finding aid focuses on the papers of Catherine Smiley “Kitty” Cheatham 1865-1946, American singer, author and lecturer. The papers span the period 1892 through 1946, although the majority of the collection is concentrated in the 1920s and 1930s. The Kitty Cheatham Papers are composed of .5 cubic feet of material, in addition to four oversized boxes and photographic negative boxes. The collection is composed of biographical sketches, clippings, correspondence, printed material, sheet music, writings, photographs, lantern slides, photographic glass negatives, and several miscellaneous items.

Kitty Cheatham was born in Nashville in 1865, the daughter of Colonel Richard Boone and Frances Anna (Bugg) Cheatham. She was educated in private schools, but afterwards attended public schools in Nashville. She began her musical career at the age of 14, when she performed at the First Presbyterian Church in Nashville. Soon afterwards, she studied music in New York, Paris and Berlin. Her first professional recital was in London, where she met and became friends with several of the younger members of Queen Victoria’s family. She performed for the royal family on many occasions thereafter.

It was only a few years after she left Nashville that her name was known throughout Europe and the United States. She was especially noted for her renditions of the familiar songs of childhood. Her repertoire soon included more than one thousand songs in nine languages, but she placed special emphasis on the works of American composers. She was one of the first artists to make known the African-American spiritual to European audiences. She was a pioneer in the arrangement of original orchestral programs, including Walter Prichard Eaton’s adaptation of Hoffman’s fairy tales, which was later used successfully in Tchaikovsky’s “Nutcracker Suite.” She was hailed as the “creator of a new art,” and was invited to give recitals in Munich, Dresden and other large cities of Europe. In the United States she was a pioneer in the creation of children’s concerts for the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and other concert orchestras.

As a speaker, collector and translator, Cheatham adapted hundreds of radio programs. In the early 20th century she developed a series of “illustrated lectures” based on her personal experiences in Russia, France, England, Germany, Scandinavia and Iceland. At the invitation of the Icelandic Parliament, she delivered an address at the Millennial Celebrations on June 28, 1930. She was an honorary vice president of the International Women’s Congress and was a delegate to the congress held at Budapest in 1937.

Her writings included: Kitty Cheatham- Her Book, and A Nursery Garland, Woven by Kitty Cheatham, both illustrated by the English artist, Graham Robertson, who had studied under Sir Edward Burne-Jones and James Whistler. She was also author of several articles on musical subjects. Her death occurred in New York City on January 6, 1946. She was interred at Mt. Olivet Cemetery in Nashville Tennessee.
The Kitty Cheatham Papers were presented to the Tennessee State Library and Archives by David D. Plater, Thibodaux, Louisiana in 2000 and 2003. There are no restrictions on the use of the material. Single photocopies of unpublished materials in the Kitty Cheatham Papers may be made for individual or scholarly research.
SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Kitty Cheatham Papers, containing approximately .5 cubic, four oversized boxes and photographic negative boxes, span the period 1892 through 1946, although the bulk of the collection is concentrated between 1920 and 1930. The collection is composed of biographical sketches, clippings, correspondence, genealogical records, legal records, printed material, programs, sketches and drawings, sheet music, speeches, writings, photographs, lantern slides, and photographic glass negatives.

The collection is small and offers little detailed biographical information concerning the career of Miss Cheatham. The correspondence is probably the most important part of the collection, although it is primarily of the “friendship” or “thank you” variety. There are several letters from correspondents in the musical, theatrical and political world such as Lynn Fontaine, William Elliot Griffis, Lord Halifax, Herbert Hoover, Cordell Hull, Rockwell Kent and Deems Taylor.

The bulk of the collection is composed of her sheet music and lantern slides. The sheet music is interesting in that it represents the type of music that Kitty Cheatham used in her performances. Much of the sheet music is marked with her notations and rearrangements. The lantern slides were used in her “illustrated lectures,” and although she spoke on many subjects only those of Iceland and various patriotic subjects remain. Although there are gaps, I have retained her numbering order for the programs. The lantern slides are stored in the vault (7-D-6).

Due to the small size of the collection, the importance of it as a major research aid is negligible. The sheet music and lantern slides may prove the most interesting as an insight into popular culture in the United States in late 19th and early 20th centuries.
