SCOPE AND CONTENT

The Edward Ward Carmack, Jr. Papers containing approximately 2100 items and one volume cover the period 1851-1968. The collection is composed of account books, accounts, an appointment, cards, clippings, commissions, correspondence, court records, genealogical data, insurance papers, a journal, land records, legal documents, a license, notebooks, obituaries, photographs, poetry, printed materials, promissory notes, school records, scrapbooks, speeches, tributes, writings and miscellaneous items.

The bulk of the collection consists of the business, personal and political correspondence of Edward Ward Carmack, Jr. Some of Edward Ward Carmack, Sr.’s correspondence and speeches are also included.

The correspondence of Edward Ward Carmack, Jr. has been divided into three general areas within the collection: (1) personal; (2) business-Southeastern Rotogravure Association and (3) political-campaigns of Carmack, Gordon Browning, Estes Kefauver and Lewis Pope for state and Federal offices. Each of these divisions is noted in the "container list."

An Executive Officer of the Southeastern Rotogravure Association, Carmack contracted with certain rural daily and weekly newspaper publishers in Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee to furnish a weekly rotogravure section. The Carmack Papers contain agreements, applications for memberships, correspondence, expense reports and other data for the newspaper association between 1929-1931.

Carmack was involved in three unsuccessful attempts to gain public office. He was defeated twice in his bid for the U. S. Senate, first in 1942 and again in 1946. In 1944 he withdrew from the Democratic gubernatorial primary. The Carmack collection traces these political bids through clippings, correspondence, notes, press releases, speaking itineraries and speeches.

Within the collection are three copies of navy commissions, two dated 1855 and one dated 1857, granted to John W. Dunnington, a great-great uncle of Edward W. Carmack. Also is found a journal kept by Dunnington while he was in command of the U. S. Frigate, "St. Lawrence."

Among the court records is the case of the Tennessee Publishing Company vs. American National Bank, et al, 1935. Included in this file are papers of Carmack which traces his attempt to gain control of the Tennessee Publishing Company from, first, Colonel Luke Lea, Sr. and, second, the American National Bank, who as a creditor had been awarded a receivership by the court over the debtor corporation.
Genealogical data may be found on the family descendants of Francis Cobey Dunnington and John W. Lockridge.

Among the land records are two plats of a proposed shopping center, the Dixie Plaza, and a sub-division development, Henry Watterson Estates, both in Louisville, Kentucky. Carmack was a land speculator in these enterprises.

Included in the photographic part of the collection are pictures of Edward W. Carmack, Sr., Silliman Evans, Cordell Hull and Estes Kefauver.

Numerous unpublished poems written by Carmack are found in the papers. In addition, there are several handwritten and typed stories of varying length by Carmack.

That Edward W. Carmack and his wife, Charlotte were frequently in debt is attested by the many promissory notes and correspondence from their creditors attempting to secure payment for these loans.

As a real estate speculator Carmack organized Stones River Homes, Inc., after World War II to provide housing for the military and their dependants at Sewart Air Force Base, Smyrna, Tennessee. The collection documents this phase of Carmack's business life with court records, financial documents, and records, management memoranda, proposals and studies.

A scrapbook of newspaper clippings traces Carmack's unsuccessful try for the Democratic nomination in the 1942 U. S. Senate race.
