MICROFILMED
INTRODUCTION

These materials dealing with the Jewish community in Nashville, Tennessee, were collected by Fedora Small (Mrs. Isadore) Frank in the course of her research for her book, Five Families and Eight Young Men, (Nashville and Her Jewry, 1850-1861), Nashville, Tenn., Tennessee Book Company, 1962.

The materials in this finding aid measure .84 linear feet. There are no restrictions on the materials.

Single photocopies of unpublished writings in the Frank, Fedora (Small) Collection may be made for purposes of scholarly research.
SCOPE AND CONTENT

These papers, containing approximately 600 items, span the period from 1840 to 1964. The collection consists of correspondence, act of incorporation, a catalog, cemetery records, census records, confirmation certificates, deeds, a receipt, family records and essays, financial records, historical sketches, lists, marriage records, military records, naturalization papers and passports, newspaper excerpts, programs, a receipt, reports, and a speech.

The papers provide a rich source for the researcher investigating various aspects of the Jewish community of Nashville, Tennessee. The materials were selected and compiled by Fedora Small (Mrs. Isadore) Frank in the course of her research for her book, Five Families and Eight Young Men, (Nashville and Her Jewry, 1850-1861). However, the paper extend far beyond 1861, with perhaps the largest bulk of the collection dating from 1850 to 1915.

Many of the items in the collection pertain to the 1850’s, the decade that witnessed the permanent establishment of a Nashville Jewish community. Although few records, as such, were left by the small group of Jewish immigrants who first settled in Nashville, their everyday life is revealed through diligent search of court proceedings, census records, newspapers and periodicals, excerpts of which have been included in this collection.

Correspondence includes a letter, 1850, regarding business conditions in Louisville and Nashville; a letter, 1862, applying for a position as rabbi in Nashville; and a letter, 1875, congratulating Andrew Johnson.

One letter, written August 8, 1852, by Isaac Garritson of Nashville to the prominent and unofficial “Chief Rabbi” of America at that time, Isaac Leeser of Philadelphia, contains one of the oldest bits of factual information about the Jews of Nashville “We have established here last year, a Hebrew Benevolent Society… it is at present very small yet numbering only 5 families and about 8 young men....”

Sketches of Nashville, written in 1867 and 1870, give insight into the Jewish community and picture the city as “delightfully situated on the Cumberland River, with good water and low rent, but also tax and dog-plagued.”

Newspaper excerpts, 1853-1915; 1953-1954, from Jewish and secular publications concern Anti-Semitism; the Anti-Grant movement of 1868; Jewish congregations, holidays, organizations, religious and social activities; and Jewish people in Nashville, Chattanooga, Clarksville, Franklin, and Murfreesboro.

The Jewish family newspaper, The Observer, contains excellent articles reviewing political, economic, and social movements affecting Jewry, and as such, should be consulted by the student of Jewish history. Within the issue of February 21, 1964, of this Nashville-based paper, to be found in this collection, are biographical information and photographs of many Jewish leaders, as well as an editorial summarizing national events from 1934 to 1964, with emphasis upon items of interest to the Jewish people.
A catalog, American Jewish Art and History in the South, 1697-1900, describes an exhibition of paintings of and by Jews. Many biographical notes on painters and subjects of paintings are included.

Other records reflect participation of Jewish people in the Civil War, Spanish-American War, and World War I; marriages; education; land ownership; religious and social activities; deaths; and burials. Included are membership lists, financial records, reports, and historical sketches tracing the growth and history of Jewish groups in Nashville.
