INTRODUCTION

The Hardeman Family Papers (1806-1885) are centered around Thomas Hardeman, (1750-1833) of Davidson and Williamson Counties, Tennessee and two of his sons, Thomas Jones Hardeman (1788-1854) of Davidson and Hardeman Counties, Tennessee and Bastrop County, Texas and Bailey Hardeman (1795-1836) of Davidson and Williamson Counties, Tennessee and Matagorda County, Texas. The papers were a gift by the heirs of Judge Walter W. Faw, Franklin, Tennessee and by William Allen Barnett, Madison, Tennessee.

The materials in this finding aid measure .42 linear feet. There are no restrictions on the materials. Single photocopies of unpublished writings in the Hardeman Family Papers may be made for purposes of scholarly research.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The Hardeman Family Papers, containing 45 items, spans the period of 1806-1885, although it is concentrated between the years 1806-1850. The collection is composed of an account book, certificates, correspondence, court records, land records, legal documents, military records, an obituary, and promissory notes.

The bulk of the collection is made up of correspondence, which consists of twenty-eight letters written by various members of the Thomas Hardeman (1750-1833) family. Subjects discussed in these letters include the War of 1812, value of money in Texas in the late 1830s, buying and selling slaves in the early 1800s, a [yellow] fever epidemic in Natchez, cotton prices, land sales in the Mississippi Territory, and the manufacture and sale of plows.

An account book, with an accompanying index, for the Hardeman Store (operated by Bailey Hardeman, 1795-1836, near Triune, Tennessee) for 1832 is included in the collection. The military records consist of a furlough pass granted to Lieutenants [Peter] Hardeman (1784-1820) in 1815. The Hardeman Family Papers provide valuable information for a pioneer family for which Hardeman County, Tennessee is named.
