INTRODUCTION

The William G. Brownlow Family Papers, 1836-1900, is centered around the William G. Brownlow family and primarily focuses on Annie Brownlow Patrick and the Patrick family. Annie Brownlow Patrick was the daughter of William G. Brownlow, former governor of the state of Tennessee (1865-1869), and the wife of William F. Patrick, Jr. The William G. Brownlow Family Papers are a gift of Mrs. Marie Halun Bloch of Cambridge, Massachusetts. See also the Governor William G. Brownlow Papers, 1865-1869, GP21.

The materials in this collection measure .25 linear feet of shelf space. There are approximately 40 items included in this collection. There are no restrictions on the materials. Single photocopies of unpublished writings in the William G. Brownlow Family Papers may be made for purposes of scholarly research.
SCOPE AND CONTENT

The William G. Brownlow Family Papers, containing approximately 40 items, spans the period 1836-1900. The collection is composed of assorted correspondence, photographs, promissory notes, legal documents, a Commonplace Book, a Book of Mottoes, and a Scrapbook. A large portion of this collection relates to Annie Brownlow Patrick and the Patrick family. Annie Brownlow Patrick was the daughter of William G. Brownlow, former governor of the state of Tennessee (1865-1869), and the wife of William F. Patrick, Jr. The arrangement of the collection is alphabetical. See also the Governor William G. Brownlow Papers, 1865-1869, GP21.

The W. G. Brownlow correspondence is centered around various letters written by or addressed to William G. Brownlow. Of special note is a letter dated July 4, 1868, from “Stella Mortem,” Great-Grand Cyclops of the Ku Klux Klan, in which the writer threatens Governor Brownlow’s life and also states that the Ku Klux Klan was responsible for the shooting of Simon Peters.

The Patrick family correspondence is a mix of letters, notes, and telegrams either written by members of the Patrick family or addressed to members of the Patrick family. One letter of note is dated March 7, 1887, and is from the Pinkerton National Detective Agency.

The editorial is from The Ladies Repository and is dated July 1862. The editorial contains interesting information on Brownlow’s time in prison and tells the story of Harrison Self being sentenced to be hanged only to have that sentence changed after Jefferson Davis received a missive from Self’s daughter, Elizabeth.

The legal documents are centered around the custody case of Camille W. Patrick.

The photographs primarily relate to Annie Brownlow. There is also one photograph of William G. Brownlow, one photograph of Mrs. W. G. Brownlow, and one photograph of the William G. Brownlow grave marker.

The promissory notes are signed by W. G. Brownlow.

The scrapbook was kept by Annie Brownlow and is dated 1875. The scrapbook contains various newspaper clippings about William G. Brownlow and current events of the time period.

The volumes are composed of a Commonplace Book and a Book of Mottoes. The Commonplace Book belonged to Annie Brownlow and is dated November 15, 1872. The Book of Mottoes belonged to W. Brownlow Patrick and is dated May 22, 1899. Both volumes contain numerous quotes.
